Eterna

Brintons proudly presents our Self Expression Spring 2025 collection from Elaine Traynor, Senior Designer.

Eterna is inspired by the ever-changing rhythms of nature. Drawing from the shifting landscapes of Traynor's garden in Maine, this collection reflects the cyclical beauty of the equinoxes and solstices, where each season unfolds in a symphony of transformation.

From the fresh emergence of spring to the radiant warmth of summer, the collection transitions into the golden hues of autumn before settling into the serene stillness of winter. Each design captures the essence of nature's perpetual cycle, weaving together colors, textures, and movement that echo the passing seasons.

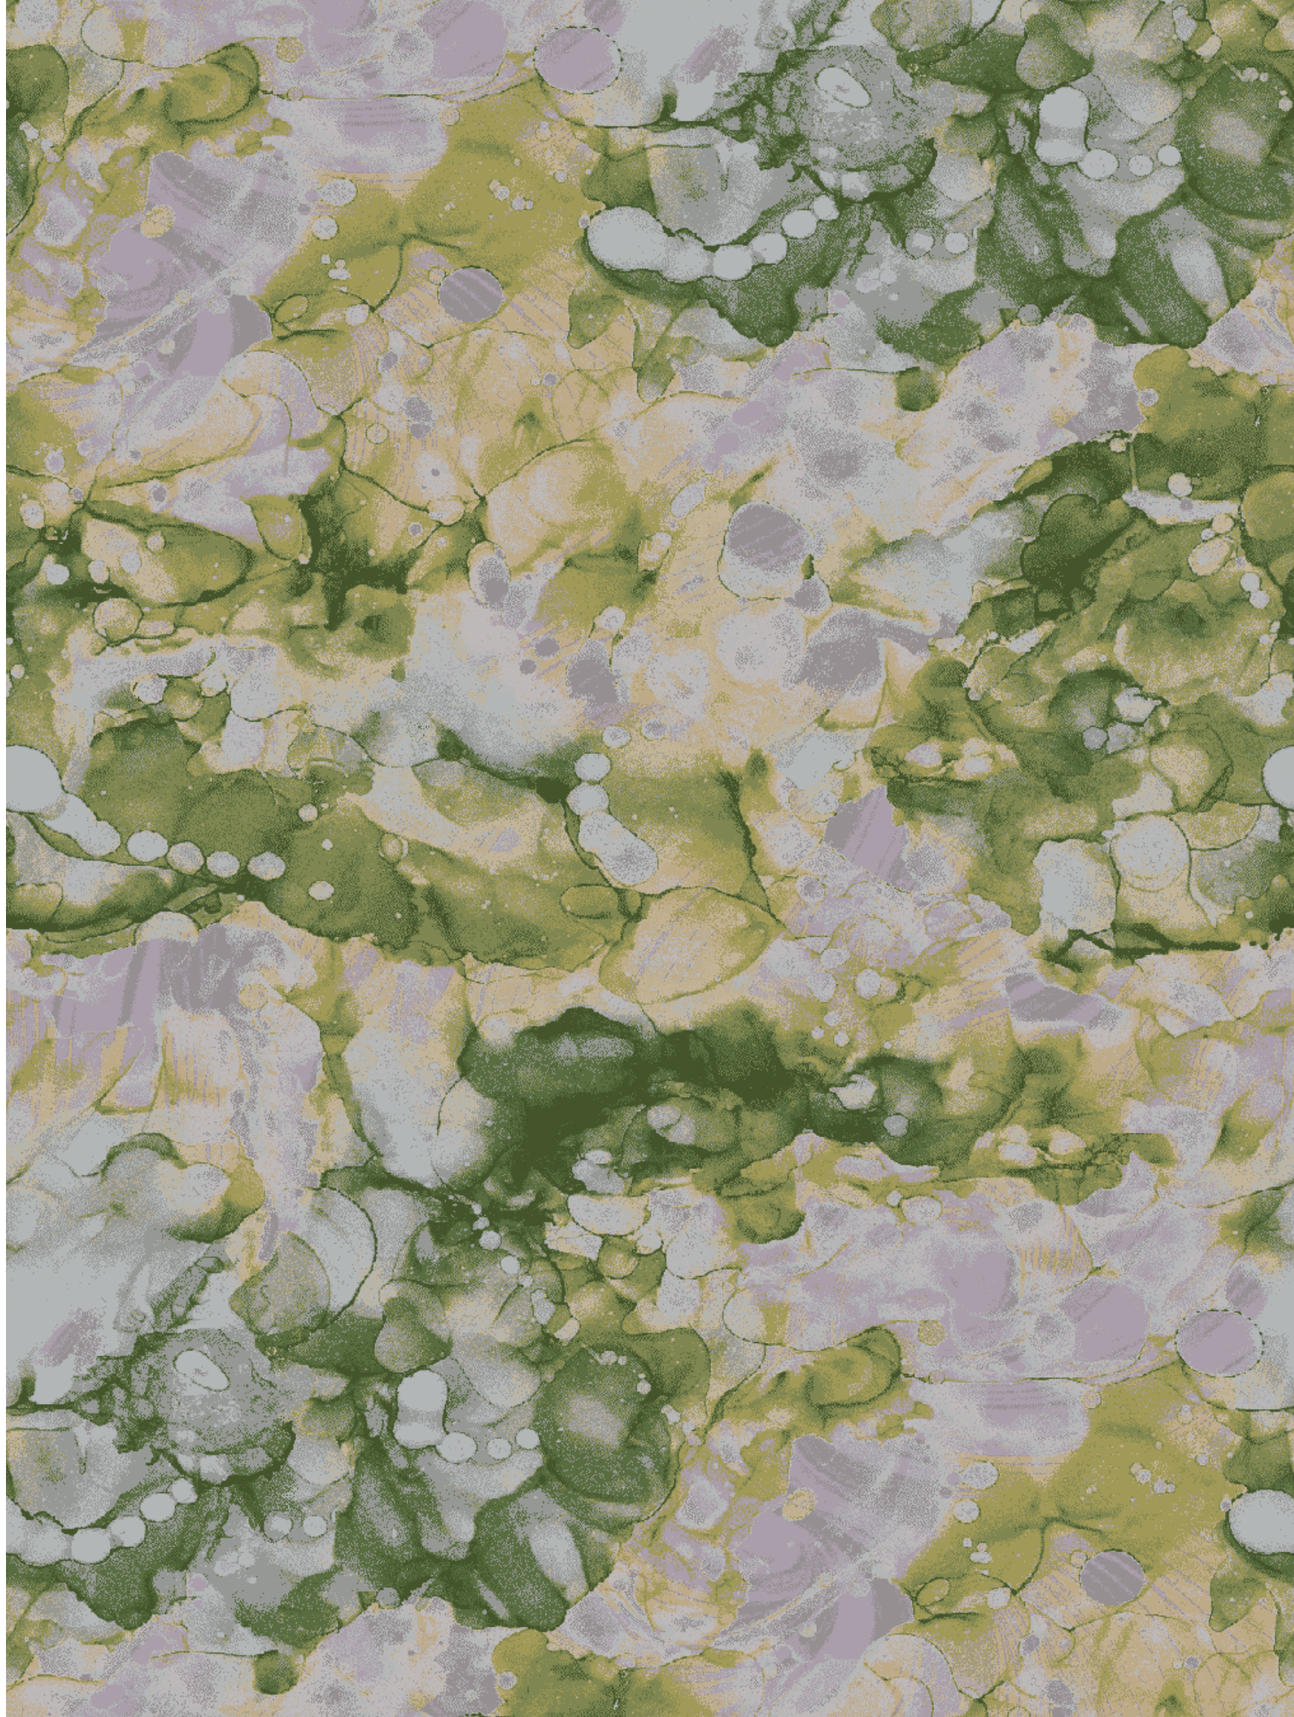

Experience the beauty of the seasons, where Eterna translates nature's poetic rhythm into timeless designs that bring harmony and balance to any space.

Eterna

Creativity, to me, isn't limited to drawing or painting—it encompasses a vast array of actions that bring something to life. My garden reflects this endless cycle of emergence, bloom, decay, and snow, a rhythm that is both predictable and deeply comforting. There's a sense of renewal in every season, one that I not only witness but actively take part in.

Elaine Traynor
Senior Field Designer

Everything here feels like a painting—the vibrant colors of summer, the flourishing plants, the hum of insects, and even the stark beauty of winter's harshness. My garden is my sanctuary, a constant source of purpose and joy throughout the year.

As spring transitions into summer, the bulbs I've planted emerge, weaving a vibrant tapestry of color. Autumn arrives, bringing the gradual transformation of greens into golden hues and the quiet decay that nourishes the soil. Then, winter blankets everything in snow, a stillness that holds the promise of renewal. As the frozen ground begins to thaw, the cycle starts again, reminding me that creativity, like nature, is an ever-evolving process.
